House in the Sierra Norte de Sevilla, at no. 21 Zabalza Tajonar Street in El Pedroso. With an unbeatable location on a beautiful tree-lined street that connects the church square with the path leading to the swimming pool and the village hermitage.

The building has great architectural value due to its early 20th century regionalist style, which is reflected in its exposed brick façade, period tiles and the cast-iron bars on windows and balconies. The Sevillian tilework also accompanies us in the hallway and patio, the one that lines the main living room of the house being of special value. With ceilings of 3.60 m. on the ground floor and floor of the house is made of hydraulic tiles of the time.

The main body is on two floors, with a hall with polychrome glass doors, a living room, distributor, bathroom and three bedrooms on the ground floor. And distributor, bathroom and four bedrooms on the first floor. In a third bay, of more recent construction, there is a large kitchen-dining room with a fireplace, from which you can access the patio of the house. A roof terrace was built on this room with unbeatable views over the town and the landscape. The rest of the plot is a large open space with two orange trees, a barbecue with a granite stone table, and a covered garage. This area is accessed directly from the street through a metal gate with sufficient dimensions for vehicle access; It has an access ford on the sidewalk and a parking prohibition plate.
